ROOSEVELT "HANDS OFF" IN GEORGIA CAMPAIGN; DR. R. B. GILBERT COMES OUT FOR TALMADGE

EAST POINT HOME OF WOMAN SCENE OF DUAL TRAGEDY

W. A. Harrison, Carpenter, Shoots Mrs. C. S. Mattox To Death and Then Trains Smoking Automatic on Himself.

NEIGHBORS FIND LIFELESS BODIES

Dead Man and Husband of Woman He Slew Were Friends of Long Standing; Motive Not Known.

Shots which shattered the stillness of suburban Dunlap avenue in East Point late Monday afternoon directed neighbors and police to the lifeless bodies of Mrs. C. S. Mattox, aged 45, and a family friend, W. A. Harrison, 54, who lived at 303 Vesta avenue, just in the rear of the Mattox home.

J. W. Miller, chief of East Point police, after an investigation, declared that it was apparent that Harrison shot and killed Mrs. Mattox and then turned the gun, a .45-caliber army automatic, on himself. Both were dead when police reached the scene and the bodies were removed to the Howard L. Carmichael funeral home.

It was stated that an inquest probably will be held, as no actual eyewitnesses to the shooting could be found, though two children playing in the yard of the Mattox home told police they saw Mrs. Mattox and Harrison scuffling over the gun through the door. Neighbors who heard the shots and the children placed the time of the shooting at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Motive Not Determined.
Police were on a loss Monday night for a motive in the double homicide. Harrison and Cliff Mattox, husband of the dead woman, had been friends for 20 years, members of the family said. The rear lots of their homes at 312 Dunlap avenue and 303 Vesta avenue adjoin. Chief Miller said that when the police report was made out, "there are some things which will be withheld from the papers at the request of the family." He said a written report on the killings would be made this morning.

Mattox is a printer, employed at an Atlanta job shop. He was at work at the time of the double killing and when notified rushed home. On seeing the body of his wife he made an effort to get into a room where a small-caliber rifle was kept and threatened to kill himself, police said. Friends and police restrained him and a police guard was left over him for several hours, until he had been given a sedative by a physician and had dropped asleep.

Witnesses said that Mattox said he was going to "join his wife" and "end it all" and rushed into the house, slamming the door behind him. His friends knocked the door open and found him in the home of his sister, Mrs. L. A. Woods, next door, where a physician was called. Patrolmen W. C. Couch and T. S. Keeler remained on guard over him for several hours, and removed the rifle to police headquarters.

Chief Miller said that when Harrison shot and killed Mrs. Mattox and then turned the gun, a .45-caliber army automatic, on himself. Both were dead when police reached the scene and the bodies were removed to the Howard L. Carmichael funeral home.

U. S. CONCILIATOR NAMED TO SETTLE ALUMINUM STRIKE

Minor Disturbances, Few Notable Developments Are Seen Along Other Battle Fronts.

By the Associated Press.
In an effort to bring 10,000 employees of the Aluminum Company of America back to work, Fred Keighly, veteran conciliator, was called from Philadelphia to Washington yesterday to confer with "interested parties"—leaders of the aluminum workers' council and company representatives.

The aluminum concern said its plants will remain shut until the strike ends. At the Massena (N. Y.) plant, the force of pickets was increased.

Trucking companies submitted a new proposition to the striking drivers at Minneapolis, and strike leaders, dissatisfied with a previous offer, prepared to consider the latest version.

A new truck drivers' strike started at Portland, Ore., with 400 drivers.

Atlanta Badly Hurt In Tennessee Crash

C. P. Roberts, Atlanta salesman for the Libby, McNeil & Libby Company, 203 Red Rock building, Monday night was reported to be in serious condition following an auto accident at Springfield, Tenn., earlier in the day in which one man was killed and three others injured.

The dead man is Russell Stearns, 35, of Miami, Fla. His 2-year-old son was critically hurt, and his wife and another child slightly injured. All the injured were taken to a Nashville, Tenn., hospital.

According to reports, the Stearns car in which the family was returning from Chicago, where they had attended the World's Fair, and Roberts' car collided on a curve, the cars striking head-on.

KEY SCORES FOES, DEFENDS POLICIES IN FISCAL AFFAIRS

"Reactionary Council Members" Flayed as Mayor Opens Campaign in Fifth; Others Speak.

James L. Key, Atlanta's veteran mayor and one of the most colorful campaigners in local political history, Monday night leveled a scathing fire against his adversaries in council, scored the school department and defended administration economy policies and his bitter fight to maintain the credit of the municipality as he opened his campaign for re-election in the September 26 primary.

Speaking to a crowd estimated at from 1,000 to 1,250 persons at the English Avenue school, in the fifth ward, Key directed his fire against what he termed reactionary council members, "who, I fear in some instances, have ceased to represent you in council."

He asked the people of Atlanta to give his administration a vote of confidence and asserted "I believe I know the temper of the people of Atlanta, and I believe they are going to do just that."

Several times during the address he was interrupted by the applause, particularly when he predicted "the people are going to bust that machine (referring to the school department's 'political machine') to smithereens in this primary."

Couch Is Heckled.
Another feature of the meeting was the address by former Alderman J. Allen Couch, of the fifth ward, who opened his drive against James E. Bowden, fifth ward alderman.

Couch was heckled by someone in the audience as he was speaking and a vote of confidence was made to his opponent about four years ago in the municipal graft probe.

"Yes, I was indicted," Couch yelled, "but I was without my knowledge or consent. I was tried by as fair a judge as ever sat in any court in the world—Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy. A jury of 12 honest Fulton county citizens heard the prosecution by one of the most relentless prosecutors this city has."

TAX ON GAS SALES UPHELD BY COURT

State To Collect $100,000 From Oil Companies Which Fought Act.

More than $100,000 in back sales taxes on gasoline can now be collected by the state as a result of a ruling by the Georgia supreme court Monday upholding the provisions of the 1929 sales tax act. R. C. Norman, former state tax commissioner, ruled shortly after the enactment of the act that the wholesale and retail sales of gasoline were exempt from the tax.

Later, when Paul Doyle took office as tax commissioner, he reversed this ruling, and the Standard Oil Company reference was made to this contradictory superior court as unconstitutional. The Standard Oil Company's back sales taxes amount to $24,260. The other oil companies pledged themselves to be bound by the decision and the posted bond to pay their back taxes should the Standard Oil Company be held liable.

Judge E. E. Pomeroy returned a verdict for the state revenue commission, and the Standard Oil Company carried the case to the supreme court. All of the supreme court justices concurred in the decision except Justice Gilbert, who was absent on account of illness in his family.

Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans represented the state revenue commission in both the lower court and before the supreme court.

Former Boxer Killed By Machine Gunners

REVERE, Mass., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Nate Siegel, former New England welterweight boxing champion and for 10 years one of the most popular fighters in this section, was slain early today by a rain of machine gun bullets that whirled through his living room window.

He was sitting in the room with his back to the window, was quietly lifted and the nose of a machine gun edged above the sill. He slumped to the floor, his chest riddled, with the first rat-tat of the gun. He died instantly.

His wife ran to the window in time to see three men climb into an automobile bearing Maine registration plates and speed away. She immediately called police.

Siegel, who was proprietor of the Cloverleaf Club on the North Shore road, had just arrived at his home, 64 Edinboroct avenue, in the Beachmont section. It was shortly after 2 a. m.

Adequate Drouth Relief Pledged by Roosevelt

President Re-emphasizes Stern Warning Against Political Activities on Part of Relief Workers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today discussed means to assuage drouth devastation by assuring adequate relief for stricken farmers and sufficient food supplies at reasonable prices for the nation's consumers.

At the same time he re-emphasized his decree against political activities of relief workers and approved dismissals of any federal agents running for political office or participating in political campaigns.

He asked Secretary Wallace and Aubrey Williams, acting federal relief administrator, to work out a system to permit federal purchase of surplus foodstuffs and feed which might otherwise go to waste.

No Food Shortage.
Both Wallace and Williams asserted there was no danger whatever of a serious food shortage. The purchase plan was arranged for a double purpose: To help growers and to make certain no food is wasted. In this connection, it was said, without government purchases, persons who raised small quantities of food and feed might not think it worthwhile to harvest their crops.

May Balk Profiters.
Some observers said the program might have a secondary purpose of preventing possible profiteering in food, although there was no official confirmation of any such intention in direct connection with the new plan. An accumulation of government supplies might, it was pointed out, prevent wide price fluctuations caused by speculation.

The practice of buying surplus crops for relief distribution is nothing new. The Federal Relief Corporation and already spent millions that way. An example is cattle purchases in the west. More than 2,000,000 head already have been bought by the government.

One official said the purchases might be as small as quantities of one carload in a community. Detailed plans are to be worked out later.

AAA Plans Unchanged.
Secretary Wallace indicated after leaving the White House that there was no prospect of any fundamental change in farm administration plans. Early in the drouth it became evident that more acres for many principal crops would be planted next year. The secretary and his aids have contended they intended to abandon restriction campaigns all along once they had served their purpose. This was to eliminate burdensome surpluses.

Wallace said the farm act had the flexibility to meet the drouth problem, including any needed for increased production. The act was framed, he asserted, with the idea of adjusting the ever-changing agricultural situation to the needs of the people. Acreage programs for next year, he added, had not been worked out, but would be so adjusted as to prevent burdensome surpluses or any shortage of foodstuffs.

Profiteers Warned.
The secretary warned that the

GEORGIA SLAYING IS LAID TO POLICE

Textile Union Told Columbus Strike Death Due to Officers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Six hundred delegates to the United Textile Workers' convention here today heard a telegram read which charged police with killing a textile worker during a strike at the Georgia Webbing and Tape Company, at Columbus, Ga.

Part of the telegram said: "It is impossible to get justice from local attorneys, the city police are planning to pin the murder on one of our boys. We have 32 eyewitnesses to the murder."

The telegram was signed by E. G. Newberry, identified as a local officer of the Columbus union.

Called into session a month ahead of schedule to "face an emergency," delegates were told by their officers that major walkouts were imminent in the textile trades.

Thomas F. McMahon, president of the organization, sounded the 31st annual meeting of the union, and declared that "strikes of large dimensions are on the way."

Southern delegates presented 50 separate resolutions calling for a general textile walkout and a vote on the question was scheduled before the week's meeting comes to an end.

McMahon urged the immediate calling of a strike whenever "strikes out"—excessive machine load practice—is attempted by an employer, unless the union has already agreed to the procedure.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the governor of Pennsylvania, received a rousing cheer as she addressed the delegates.

"I believe in trade unions because I am an American," she said. "We can't have democracy unless we have it all along the line—in the work."

Japanese Government Sees Little Peril of War With U. S.

(This is the twenty-fifth in Mr. Clarke's series on the Far East.)
By FRANCIS W. CLARKE.
TOKYO.—(By Mail).—Despite the sensational outbursts of jingo elements both in Japan and the United States, the Japanese government is convinced there is no real danger of the development of serious misunderstandings between the two governments.

This belief is based on various reasons, chief among which are the following:

The lack of fundamental differences in policy.

The continued friendship and respect of the Japanese people for the United States.

The desire of the Japanese government for the co-operation of the American government in the solution of troublesome Far Eastern problems.

The improvement of Japanese-American relations since the Roosevelt administration has been in office.

The belief that the American government and the American people are rapidly becoming better acquainted.

FOUR MEN KILLED BY GEORGIA TRAIN AT MILLEDGEVILLE

Three White Men and Negro Mangled Beyond Recognition as Truck Is Struck by Engine.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Traveling over a newly-paved highway opened to traffic a few hours earlier, four men were killed today when a Georgia railroad passenger train demolished their truck.

The victims, whose bodies were mangled beyond recognition, were Charlie Hannon, driver; Y. A. Reynolds, Clarence Carroll and Toot Smith, the latter a negro. All were residents of Rutledge.

G. P. Sayre, of Rutledge, Ga., owner of the truck, supplied the names of the victims. He said Hannon was employed by him to haul brick from Milledgeville to Rutledge and that he had given the others a lift.

The accident occurred at a crossing 200 yards from the local passenger station. The truck, struck broadside, was dragged almost the distance and two of the victims were ground to death beneath the wheels of the locomotive. The other bodies were removed from wreckage piled on the cowcatcher.

Hardly a piece of the one-and-a-half-ton truck was left intact and the front of the locomotive was badly damaged.

Engineer C. T. McDermott said the truck was directly in front of his locomotive before he could apply the emergency brakes. The train, No. 31, was en route from Camak to Macon.

HOMESTEAD PLAN CARRIED TO F. D. R.

President Is Asked by Vinson To Federalize Chancellorsville Project

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Representative Vinson of Georgia, asked President Roosevelt today to completely federalize the Chancellorsville homestead project in Jasper and Putnam counties, Ga.

Vinson said after a conference at the White House that he believed early action in that direction would be taken.

Work on the $1,000,000 five-hundred family project has been at a standstill since the University System of Georgia, which originally sponsored the work, withdrew its support because of federal intervention.

Vinson said he asked the president to make the development a completely federal managed project and that work be rushed to completion.

The president agreed, the representative said, to take the matter up with Charles E. Fynnon, general manager of the federal subsistence homestead corporation.

Vinson said only slightly more than $100,000 had been spent so far. He brought with him photographs of some of the work that already has been done and presented them to the president.

SPECIAL SESSION SEEN IN LOUISIANA TO REMOVE MAYOR

Long Expected To Have Allen Reconvene Legislature To Secure Grip on New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—(AP)—It was learned from an authoritative source late today that a special session of the Louisiana legislature would possibly be called for tomorrow for the impeachment of certain high officials in New Orleans.

The rumored action was interpreted as another phase of the "battle to the death" struggle between Senator Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley for control of politics in the city.

The New Orleans States said that Governor O. K. Allen, Long's lieutenant, was expected to issue a speedy call for assembly of the legislature, possibly tomorrow, at which Senator Long would also attempt to push through new measures aimed at strengthening his power in New Orleans.

Allen Absent.
Governor Allen was reported out of Baton Rouge, and was presumably in New Orleans, but could not be located for comment. Senator Long could not be reached.

A source close to the administration said that the governor probably would be taken against Mayor

Woman Near Death After Drinking Poison

After drinking a quantity of poison in an apartment in the 200 block on Woodward avenue, Mrs. Marion Peacock, 24, of 547 Pulliam street, Monday night was in Grady hospital. She is not expected to live, physician said.

Her husband, Marion Peacock, also is in Grady hospital, where he underwent an operation Friday. He was not informed that his wife is near death only a short distance away. Mrs. Peacock is unconscious.

Police are baffled as to the motive for the attempted suicide. Mrs. O. Johnson, 119 Ormond avenue, mother of the young woman, said she did not know why her daughter would try to kill herself.

NOT PARTICIPATING IN LOCAL POLITICS, SAYS WHITE HOUSE

MacIntyre Statement, Authorized by President, Seen as Setback to Efforts To Inject F. D. R. Into Governor's Race.

GILBERT IS HEAD OF F. D. R. CLUBS

Statement of Meriwether Man Charges Talmadge Opposition Capitalizing on Name of President.

Informed that the opposition to Governor Eugene Talmadge had injected the name of President Roosevelt into the Georgia gubernatorial campaign, the White House, through Marvin H. MacIntyre, the president's executive secretary, Monday issued a statement reiterating that the president will not participate in this or any other local campaign.

The declaration came as Dr. R. B. Gilbert, of Greenville, president of the Roosevelt-for-President Clubs of Georgia, issued a statement charging that the governor's opposition was attempting to capitalize on the president's name and announcing his support of Governor Talmadge for re-election.

The Gilbert statement was issued after information regarding a declaration from Secretary MacIntyre had reached Atlanta.

The decision of the White House not to participate in any local campaign was announced by Mr. MacIntyre after he had been informed in writing by Ryburn G. Clay, president of the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta, and chairman of the special democratic fund-raising committee in Georgia in 1932, that the opposition was attempting to make political capital out of the president's name.

The Gilbert statement, charging Governor Talmadge's opposition, declared that the governor's actions in Georgia were in line with President Roosevelt's own policies and the policies of his administration, adding that the fact that reduction of utility rates is one of the chief aims of President Roosevelt and asserting that utility rates have been reduced in Georgia more than any other state.

PRESIDENT STAYS OUT OF GEORGIA CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Efforts on the part of opponents of Governor Eugene Talmadge to involve President Roosevelt in the gubernatorial campaign were rebuffed today by the White House today in an official declaration that the president has no intention of being drawn into any local political contest.

Informed of such maneuvers, which are designed to create the impression that the Talmadge administration is held in disfavor in Washington, Marvin H. MacIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, addressed a letter to Ryburn Clay, of Atlanta, president of the Fulton National Bank, reiterating Mr. Roosevelt's announced policy of pursuing a hands-off course in all campaigns for state officers.

"There has been no variation from this policy," Secretary MacIntyre informed Mr. Clay.

The subject of the Georgia gubernatorial campaign came up during an informal discussion between Mr. MacIntyre and Mr. Clay at the White House this morning. Told of the efforts of Governor Talmadge's opponents to involve the president, Mr. MacIntyre said:

PITTMAN GIVES FARM WAGE SCALE

Tells Carnesville Heckler He Pays 75 Cents a Day and 'Board' on His Farm

CARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 13.—Answering questions from a heckler today, Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Carnesville, one of Governor Eugene Talmadge's two opponents for re-election, said that he paid hands on his north Georgia farm 75 cents a day, but added that they got their food in addition.

The candidate was heckled considerably at the start of his address but finished it after answering a number of questions.

He made his reply concerning the wages he pays his own employees when a heckler asked him if he paid the NRA scale to his workers.

The heckling started almost on the outset of the meeting and continued for some time.

Each time Judge Pittman drove home some shaft of sarcasm, the crowd roared until the hecklers were silenced.

Just after Judge Pittman came forward, one of the hecklers shouted:

"Have you ever done any farming?"

"Yes, I have," Judge Pittman said. "I'm ready to meet Talmadge on that issue. I've followed the plow and I don't have to wear red galluses and ten-penny nails to prove it."

Judge Pittman said he was operating a farm now, and a heckler asked him if he was paying 40 cents an hour for wages.

"I pay about 75 cents a day in wages," Judge Pittman said. "But the people I employ get their food and a place to stay, and it doesn't cost them anything. There is no danger of them starving or getting on the relief rolls."

The heckling grew more insistent as one man asked Judge Pittman what he intended doing if he was elected and the judge began a discussion of his platform, stressing his pledge for honesty in government and co-operation with the national administration.

Interruption followed interruption so closely that Judge Pittman could hardly finish his answers. Finally he turned to the heckler:

"If you'll just keep your mouth shut, I'll tell you what I'll do when I'm governor."

Judge Pittman was introduced by L. P. Webb, prominent Carnesville citizen, who said:

"Judge Pittman will free this state from tyranny and oppression."

"He is an upright citizen who will be a credit to Georgia and will respect the rights of citizens, rich and poor alike."

"We need have no fear for the dignity and credit of our beloved state with such a man in the governor's chair."

BLUE RIDGE HEARS CANDIDATE SPEAK

BLUE RIDGE, Ga., Aug. 13.—Judge Claude Pittman, reopening another week of campaigning here today, challenged Governor Talmadge to meet directly the "many charges of graft and corruption I have made against him and his henchmen," but asserted that "Talmadge, knowing his guilt, will continue to evade the issues which have been put up to him four-square."

"Since I opened my campaign at Calhoun on May 26," Judge Pittman declared, "I have been submitting to the people of Georgia evidence that Governor Talmadge has violated his oath, that he has raped the constitution of a sovereign people, that he has outraged decency and honesty in government."

"I have built my own platform in the interests of the little man in Georgia, and have shown that the benefits that Talmadge claims for the big corporations at the expense of the state's helpless, I have offered my own program of government in behalf of the masses, in contrast to the Talmadge regime of favoritism for corporations and special interests represented by lawyers who are the governor's friends and advisers."

"I have made more than 30 specific charges, any one of which is evidence enough that Talmadge has been unfaithful to the people. The people of Georgia are waiting yet for these charges of Talmadge to deny them, or charge, or even try to justify them."

"Only two of these charges has Talmadge attempted to deny, and I presented my evidence to prove his denial false."

"I do not believe that a majority of the people of Georgia will sanction this administration, because Talmadge says 'I did it for you' or because, in reference to the pardon racket, he says 'I am proud that I granted through my friends 1,271 pardons, commutations and paroles.'"

"The people of Georgia by and large are familiar with the record of the man who presides as head of our state government. Most of them know the records and the acts of Talmadge and the other members of the 'House of Talmadge' who have their hands in the coffers of the state, digging away at the taxpayers' money."

Judge Pittman discussed in detail his own program, taking up each plank of his 15-plank platform in detail, and declared that "one single plank will mean more to the masses than the $3 tag, and I propose that they shall have them both."

Two Weeks' Tobacco Sales Bring Four Million Dollars

By the Associated Press.

A slightly lower average price was paid for Georgia tobacco during the second week of auction sales at the 15 markets in the state, but total pounds sold exceeded the first week by approximately two and a half times.

A total of 15,247,178 pounds of bright leaf was auctioned off during the week ending August 10 at an average price per pound of 20.45 cents, H. K. Ramsey, statistician of the state department of agriculture, announced. The average price last week was 20.62 cents per pound for the 6,966,738 pounds sold.

The average of 20.45, however, was 6.15 cents per pound above the average price paid for the tobacco sold on the same markets last year, and the department of agriculture said reports indicated "the best season for several years. Warehousemen claim 90 per cent of growers satisfied."

During the two-week sales through last Friday, a total of 22,213,916 pounds of tobacco sold on the Georgia markets and brought the growers $4,683,924.04. During the first week 6,966,738 pounds at an average price of 22.62 cents a pound brought $1,575,876.14. Last week 15,247,178 pounds sold at an average of 20.45 cents a pound, the income from these was $3,118,047.90.

BURKE MAN IS JAILED IN FATAL CAR CRASH

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Charged with crashing his car into another three times and finally turning it over with fatal injuries to J. N. Cook, 70, Buster McManus, 24, was held today in jail here and Deputy O. J. Lielt said he would be charged with murder.

Lielt said he did not know the details of the affair except that McManus, a Burke county resident, crashed into an automobile driven by a man named Ellis, of Augusta. The third time the Ellis machine overturned.

Cook, who lives at Richmond Factory, was riding with Ellis. He was injured and died later in a Richmond hospital.

McManus was arrested today on a charge of assault with intent to murder but Lielt, learning of Cook's death, said the charge would be changed to murder.

HAS NO HUGE FUND, GILLIAM STATES

Candidate for Governor at Eastman Says He Is Backed by No Faction.

EASTMAN, Ga., Aug. 13.—"If a man is a fool to run for governor of Georgia without a campaign fund of at least $25,000, as many of my friends and political experts have told me, then I must confess to being a fool," said Ed A. Gilliam, candidate for governor, in an address here this afternoon to an audience of Dodge county citizens at the Eastman courthouse.

"I have neither a campaign fund of $25,000, nor do I have the backing of any political faction. However, it has been my observation that if the rank and file of the people approve a man's platform and decide that he is worthy of their confidence, they will elect him governor without regard to political factionalism or campaign finances, which is simply another way of saying that ultimately the government resides in the people and not in a check book or a political ring."

"My honest opinion is that at least two-thirds of the people of Georgia are against Governor Talmadge, and propose to retire him on the date of the democratic state primary, September 12. Whether they vote for Judge Pittman or vote for me will depend upon their estimate as to which of the two is the stronger candidate."

"I entered the race for the purpose of advancing a fundamental and far-reaching reform to benefit the people of Georgia, and my campaign is growing in strength and momentum every day."

"Judge Pittman is against Governor Talmadge, which is both proper and appropriate, but the judge's weakness is that he offers you nothing constructive. It will be a blessing to the state to get rid of Talmadge, but that is not enough."

"The constructive measures contained in my platform go far beyond the mere matter of taking out a governor and substituting a new man in his place. The people know this, and that is why my candidacy is moving forward, while Judge Pittman's candidacy is slowing down."

Gilliam announced that on Tuesday he would speak in the morning at Fitzgerald and in the afternoon at Ocilla.

LINDER CARRIES RACE INTO NORTH GEORGIA

CALHOUN, Ga., Aug. 13.—Tom Linder, of Hazlehurst, continued his drive for commissioner of agriculture with speeches delivered today at Blue Ridge, Chatsworth and Calhoun.

"The present commissioner," declared Linder, "says that I am no farmer, and he is running around over the state crying that he should not have any opposition because he is entitled to an endorsement term. His memory must be very short, because when Governor Talmadge was seeking an endorsement term the present commissioner ran against him with the backing of the fertilizer interests."

"I was born and reared on a farm," Linder continued, "and have farmed all my life, and am still farming. I believe that I am better qualified from the experience of 30 years' farming, and my experience in the department of agriculture and in the governor's office to help the farmers of the state than any other man now seeking the job of commissioner of agriculture."

NRA IS REBUFFED BY TRADE GROUP

Commission Rules Rubber Concerns' Monopoly Charges Must Stand.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(UP)—The federal trade commission today sharply rebuffed NRA for questioning its power to investigate alleged monopolistic practices and price fixing under the Blue Eagle codes.

The rebuff was given by Trade Commission Trial Examiner W. W. Sheppard during a hearing brought by NRA to compel three rubber footwear manufacturing companies to file their price schedules under the rubber code, which they had refused to do.

Sheppard denied a motion of NRA counsel to throw out counter charges by the three companies that the rubber code fosters monopoly, oppresses small business interests through compelling them to file minimum price schedules and that the rubber code had been drafted without their consent.

The three companies are La Crosse Rubber Mills Co., La Crosse, Wis.; Phillips-Baker Co., Providence, R. I.; and Goodyear Rubber Co., Middletown, Conn.

As a result of Sheppard's decision, the federal trade commission will pass upon the important NRA test case of whether price fixing or price filing is illegal and whether the rubber code fosters monopoly. The price issues are expected to affect about 200 NRA codes.

ROOSEVELT SILENT ON GEORGIA RACE

nents to inject the president's name into the campaign and thus make political capital of the chief executive's popularity in the state, Mr. McIntyre asked the Atlanta banker to put the complaint in writing, which took the following form:

"Mr. Marvin H. McIntyre,
"Secretary to the President.
"The White House,
"Washington.
"Dear Mr. McIntyre:
"An effort is being made by the opposition to Governor Talmadge in his race for re-election as governor of Georgia to make it appear that the president of the administration may take sides in the campaign.
"I would appreciate such information as you can give me concerning the attitude of the administration toward the Georgia campaign.
"Cordially yours,
"(Signed) "R. G. CLAY."

White House Letter.
Disclaiming any intention of being drawn into the Georgia campaign and reiterating the president's hands-off policy, Mr. McIntyre, in response to the Clay note, delivered the following letter to the latter later in the day.

"The White House, Washington, August 13, 1934.
"My Dear Mr. Clay:
"I think that possibly the best reply that I can make to your inquiry would be to quote to you from the president's statement of March 23. There has been no variation from this policy.
"At that time the president issued a statement which in conclusion said: 'It was emphasized that the president will strictly adhere to his hands-off policy when and wherever attempts are made to involve him in local political contests.'
"Very sincerely yours,
"M. H. MCINTYRE,
"Secretary to the President."

Accompanied by Mrs. Clay, the Atlanta banker arrived in Washington this morning for a brief visit and brought up the subject of the Georgia gubernatorial contest during an informal call at the White House on Secretary McIntyre, an old friend.

Criticism "Minor Incidents."
Early in the spring, at the beginning of the various state political campaigns, President Roosevelt made it plain that he had no intention of permitting his name to be drawn into races for state offices. Several attempts such as that undertaken by the Talmadge opposition in Georgia have been made to inject the chief executive into campaigns, but all have met with similar failure. The president has left no room for doubt on the score that he is taking no part in any state campaign. Thus far he is even yet to come forth with a partisan appeal for the election of democratic congressmen and senators at the November elections.

Such criticism as the governor, in his usual outspoken way, has directed at controversial national policies from time to time have been treated as minor incidents here and in no way designed to create friction between the president and the Georgia executive. If anything, Mr. Roosevelt has made it clear that he welcomes a certain amount of constructive criticism always.

The inference behind the McIntyre letter to Mr. Clay today was, therefore, that there is not the slightest basis for anything the opponents of Governor Talmadge may be saying in an effort to create the feeling Mr. Roosevelt is taking a hand in the state campaign.

He has not yet made any gesture to this end and has no intention of doing so.

DR. R. B. GILBERT BACKS
TALMADGE FOR GOVERNOR
Governor Talmadge Monday night declined to comment on dispatches from Washington regarding the gubernatorial campaign, but Dr. R. B. Gilbert, of Greenville, county seat of Meriwether, part-time home of President Roosevelt and president of the first Roosevelt-for-President Club in the country, issued a statement in which he said he was supporting Governor Talmadge for re-election on his record, and accused the governor's opposition of trying to capitalize on the name of Roosevelt.

The Gilbert statement follows:
"As president of the Roosevelt club of Georgia and one who has worked continuously for President Roosevelt and is now working for him, I am supporting Governor Eugene Talmadge for re-election on his record.
"He has fulfilled his campaign promise two years ago. This is more than I can say of any other governor in my memory.
"His effort in reducing utility rates in Georgia is one of President Roosevelt's administration planks.
"Utility rates have been reduced in Georgia more than in any other state in the union.
"Taxes and cost of government have been reduced in Georgia more than in any other state in the union.
"Roosevelt appreciates this as much as do the citizens of Georgia.
"The continuous attempts of the opposition to inject Roosevelt into the race in Georgia show that they are not friends of Roosevelt but are trying to capitalize on his name.
"I am proud to support two such statesmen in the United States as Franklin D. Roosevelt and Eugene Talmadge.

"Mr. McIntyre, the executive secretary of the president, has settled once and for all the controversy in Georgia."

TOKYO, Aug. 13.—(UP)—Breath of negotiations between Moscow and Tokyo for sale of Russia's interest in the Chinese Eastern railway precipitated a new crisis in tense Russo-Japanese relations today.

The railway crosses Manchukuo, Japanese-controlled state, and formerly was owned jointly by Russia and China. Manchukuo seized the Chinese interest and sought to purchase the Russian portion.

The negotiators failed to reach an agreement on price and the Manchukuo delegation announced their departure was booked for Thursday.

COLUMBUS POLICE CHIEF SAYS NO SHOTS FIRED

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 13.—(UP)—Chief of Police H. W. Cornett, of the Columbus police department, tonight said his men had "not fired a shot" in the strike here.

The fight that led to the shooting in which Reuben Sanders, a textile worker, was slain, occurred at the Georgia Webbing and Tape Company last Friday. The strike involved only the webbing company, which employs about 50 persons and was called because the company did not recognize the union.

Last week the plant reopened and eight persons returned to work. G. D. Beasley said he and J. H. Tipper and their wives were leaving the plant when pickets stopped them. He claimed a picket slapped Mrs. Tipper and he tried to drive his car through the lines.

The pickets followed and Beasley said he pulled a gun from a pocket of the car. Several persons grabbed him and the gun was discharged, the bullet striking Sanders, who was not an employee of the webbing company. Police and sheriff's deputies were called and ended the fight when they threatened to use tear gas.

Chief Cornett today said "the police department has not fired a shot in the textile strike in Columbus. Three men are being held on charges of murder for the killing of one man at the Georgia Webbing and Tape Company. One is a striker and two are non-strikers."

In addition to Beasley and Tipper police are holding G. E. Clark.

The following statement was issued at Columbus tonight by E. B. Newberry, secretary of the local textile union:

"On Friday afternoon I sent a telegram to New York to the effect that two men had been shot during the strike disturbance. After learning that I had been misinformed I sent a second telegram which stated that only one person had been shot. In neither telegram did I state that the shooting was done by police, but by strikebreakers, who attempted to drive their automobile through a picket line composed of members of our union."

"Up until this time the picketing had been peaceful and would have continued so had not the strikebreakers tried to drive their car through the picket line.
"We have endeavored to employ counsel in Columbus but were unable to do so because the reputable attorneys whom we sought to engage were either connected with the manufacturers or had other excuses. Then I wired the international president, Mr. McMahon, it was impossible to secure legal counsel here and for him to advise me what steps should be taken.
"I can readily understand why the mistake was made by the convention in New York. It was because telegrams were pouring in there from all over the country concerning this tragedy.
"My statement to the effect that 'they are trying to pin the murder on one of our boys' referred to the fact that G. E. Clark is being held in jail in connection with the shooting. The fact is that Clark was trying to take the gun away from Beasley to keep anyone from being shot.
"The only criticism that I have to make against the police department is that the strikebreakers were not searched for weapons. In accordance with the request which I made of Chief Cornett."

mation that led to the fatal ambush of Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, Texas desperadoes, by Louisiana and Texas officers.

Hemophilia and Auto Crash Fatal to Ex-King Alfonso's Son

VIENNA, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The curse of his life, hemophilia, today struck down Prince Gonzalo, youngest son of former King Alfonso, of Spain, following a slight motor accident near Krumpendorf, in southern Austria.

The accident occurred at 7:30 p. m. and the youth died at the family villa at Poertschach, Carinthia province, at 12:45 a. m., before medical attention could save him.

Doctors were called but it was too late. The physician in charge, Dr. Keyser, examined the body and told the United Press:

"He showed no outward signs of an accident, but died of internal bleeding, which no operation could have halted."

The 20-year-old youth's injuries at first were considered minor. They were suffered when the car in which he was riding with his sister, the Infanta Beatrice, turned off the road to avoid a motorcyclist and struck a wall.

Beatrice drove back to the villa at Poertschach, where Gonzalo insisted "nothing has happened."

A little later he felt ill, lapsed into unconsciousness and died. The infanta was shaken up by the crash but otherwise unhurt.

She explained that the accident was caused by a motorcyclist, Baron Rich and Neumann, coming along the wrong side of the highway. Neumann denied driving while intoxicated, but admitted being on the wrong side of the road. The police questioned him closely.

Funeral services probably will be Wednesday from Poertschach.

Hemophilia is a disease which causes excessive bleeding from the slightest injuries. It is inherited only by males and transmitted only by women. Prince Alfonso, the eldest son of the former monarch, has suffered from it all his life.

Although the fourth son of Alfonso, Gonzalo was second in line to the Spanish throne, should there be a restoration of the monarchy. The crown prince married a Cuban commoner and was thereby eliminated. Prince Jaime, second son, renounced his claims due to infirmities.

Thus, the third son, Prince Juan, 21, became prince of the Asturias and heir to the throne. He is a midshipman in the British navy. Gonzalo was a student at Louvain University, Belgium.

THE HOUSING PROGRAM.

Monday marked the opening of the federal housing drive by which it is hoped to bring about the rehabilitation of the still stagnant construction industry, the re-employment of more than 2,000,000 men and the modernization and beautification of several million American homes.

It is estimated that there are now 12,000,000 homes in the United States badly in need of repairs as the result of the neglect suffered during the four years of the depression and that at least 2,000,000 new homes are needed to make up for the shortage that steadily increased during this period.

In comparison to the normal construction program of the country, buildings, especially of homes, has been at a practical standstill since 1930. But few homes have been erected to take the place of those destroyed by fire or which for other reasons have become uninhabitable. Additions and repairs that would under ordinary conditions have been contracted for have been of necessity omitted from the budget of the average family.

While there is a marked housing shortage now, the situation will grow more critical as families who have been forced to double up in single residences are once more able, through increased revenues, to look about for homes for themselves.

The federal billion-dollar home modernization drive has the three-fold purpose of rehabilitating the construction industry, putting several million men back to work and making it possible for those desiring better home conditions to secure them now at the beginning of the upward turn in economic conditions, instead of having to wait while the necessary funds either to build new homes or enlarge or repair present dwellings are being accumulated.

The building program is based on sound business principles, with safety for the government, profit for organizations advancing the money for the construction work, and opportunity for the property owner to secure improvements at low rates of interest and construction costs.

Home owners, or those desiring new homes, will probably never again in future be able to furnish themselves with comfortable and commodious dwellings as cheaply as they can under the new federal program and at such advantageous terms, both as to interest and time in which to repay loans.

The program is radically different from the other reconstruction steps taken by the federal government. In most of these the government deals directly with those to whom assistance is rendered. In the home modernization program, the government merely guarantees against loss to those advancing the money for the work, the transactions being carried on through the same channels as were used before the depression.

Billions of dollars of capital formerly used in the financing of home construction has been lying idle during the past few years because of the fear of loss if it were again put into home construction. The government's guarantee will remove this fear and will undoubtedly restore the necessary financial life stream to the building industry.

Those desiring better homes, or new homes, who delay in taking advantage of the opportunity offered, will find later on that their procrastination has deprived them of living quarters during an unnecessary period, and added to the cost of providing their families with proper home facilities.

The weaker the average man's argument, the louder he talks. The more money a person has, the more people who are trying to figure out methods to get some of it.

NEW DEAL ON TRIAL AGAIN.

The acid test will be applied to the New Deal to a far greater extent in the primaries to be held today in Ohio, Nebraska and Idaho than was the case in the elections last week in Kansas, West Virginia and Missouri.

While the policies of the national administration were injected to a certain degree into the campaigns in the latter states, the contests were fought out largely on local questions. In the states to vote today the situation is different, with the New Deal being the dominating issue in each contest.

In addition, the results in politically uncertain states as Ohio, Nebraska and Idaho will give a far more accurate line on what the two major parties may expect in the congressional elections this fall and the presidential election in 1936.

If the New Deal advocates pile up substantial leads in today's primaries, and if the votes cast in the democratic contests are materially larger than those received by republican candidates, there will be definite assurance that the country as a whole is still of the same political mind as in the fall of 1932 when the republican party went down to one of the most crushing defeats in its history.

It is not at all improbable that some of the candidates in these three states who are regarded as having at least the friendly interest of the national democratic organization may be defeated by candidates none too friendly to the New Deal, but this threat lies chiefly in the fact that administration candidates are in the majority. The true test of the attitude of the voters will be not so much as to whether a favorable or unfavorable candidate is successful as in the number of votes received by all the candidates in each group. This is illustrated by the result in the recent Pennsylvania senatorial primary when Governor Pinchot, who ran on a New Deal platform, was defeated by an anti-administration candidate, although the total vote cast for candidates favoring the Roosevelt policies was several hundred thousand larger than the vote received by opposing candidates.

Whatever the outcome of today's primaries, they will mark a redoubling of efforts by the national organizations of both major parties in preparation for the congressional elections in the fall. The full force of these efforts will not be felt in the south, where it is admitted that even in the borderline states the democrats will hold the gains of two years ago, but the republicans are ready now to make their first desperate drive to recoup some of the losses of 1932.

CUBA RESTS MORE EASILY.

The Mendietta government of Cuba successfully passed a critical stage in its existence when the first anniversary of the overthrow of the Machado regime passed Sunday without serious trouble.

The recalcitrants in the little island republic laid extensive plans for disturbances which it was hoped would result in another governmental overturn, but the Mendietta forces blocked every effort at violence, and there was apparently little public sympathy with the plans to again plunge the country into the turmoil of internal strife.

Communist leadership in the attempted overthrow of Mendietta caused the people of the country generally to look askance at this latest threat to law and order. While the communists have undoubtedly gained considerable foothold in Cuba, even the most radical elements of the better classes of the island's population seem to realize the threat of these agitators to the welfare of the country.

The Mendietta government has successfully met every crisis with which it has been faced and each has marked an increase in its strength and stability. Despite the postal strikes now going on, Cuba's affairs are now undoubtedly in better condition than they have been since the beginning of the troubles that finally brought about Machado's retirement.

An airplane was stolen in Poland. That's theft in high places.

Justice may be blind, but sometimes its decisions will open the eyes of others.

This is even a day of marvels. A Massachusetts man is operating a car on three dollars weekly pay.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

The Plot.

More and more it becomes clear that the men who were executed by Goering and Hitler on June 30 and the following days were not singled out because of plotting against the dictatorship, for there was no plot, but that they were individuals who shared with the leaders exact knowledge of the details of the reichstag fire. Not all were executed though. Some escaped across the border and are now in Switzerland, France and the Saar district.

One of these men, a subleader named Kruse, has addressed a letter to Herr Hindenburg telling him that he was a witness of the exact knowledge of the reichstag fire. He also throws a revealing light on the role played by that pathetic man, Van der Lubbe, who lost his head, the first of the men who knew too much. At the trial, the judge asked repeatedly whether Van der Lubbe acted alone, because this seemed impossible. Van der Lubbe never replied. Because, we learn now, he could not reply, he was doped. This is the reason the German government refused to hand over the body of the dead Van der Lubbe to the Dutch authorities. A post-mortem examination would have shown the presence of narcotics in his lungs. The reichstag was set on fire by Goering's men, who entered the building through the underground passage which runs from the residence of the reichstag president (Herr Goering) to the parliament buildings itself.

Goebbels Versus Goering.

The most curious feature of the new revelations is that the men who make them have been helped to safety across the borders by agents of Dr. Goebbels, the latter propaganda minister. Goebbels has always detested Goering and now he has the chance to punish him. Goebbels came within an ace of losing his life in Goering's clean-up on June 30. He was in sympathy with the ideas of Goebbels and Gregor Strasser, but changed to the other side in the nick of time. During the clean-up days he never left Hitler for a moment. He was afraid that the moment he left Hitler he would be seized by Goering's agents and made to share the fate of Strasser, Roehm, Ernst and Heines.

Another thing has happened in the reich, which should be mentioned. The reichswehr generals have demanded an investigation into the murder of General Schleicher. They had expected that Hitler would make some sensational revelations about the general's alleged plotting with a foreign power, in the course of the recent reichstag speech. Hitler has refused to do so. He did not say a word, did not advance the slightest proof. The generals are pressing for an investigation. This is very embarrassing to Hitler. The reichswehr generals are the real masters of the situation in Germany. Then, in turn, are not so much much as Hitler. He can only dismiss the whole blame for the reichstag fire and for the murder of General Schleicher on the head of Goering. But this man Goering is not easily dismissed. He has a police force of his own. He knows what he is doing. So for the time being he fills the air with speeches of loyalty to Hitler, a defense mechanism on his part. Dismissal won't finish Goering. It will have to be assassination.

Goebbels' Role.

Why is Goebbels out after Goering's head? The answer is this. When Goebbels swerved away from both Roehm and Strasser in the nick of time, he knew that he had to make an angle of the mass of the nazis by such base treason in the moment of danger. He knows that the followers of Goebbels are planning revenge. They are only looking for the favorable moment to put him on the spot. So, in order to rehabilitate himself in their eyes, he is willing to hand over Goering, the chief executor of the bloody work, to be killed. It is now a question who will be killed first, Goering or Goebbels. Both have surrounded themselves with a bodyguard. Goebbels has 2,000 men constantly around him. Goebbels hasn't that many. But he does not sleep for two nights in the same house. These are the savers of Germany, people.

A large proportion of all automobile accidents—some engineers who have studied the question estimate 85 per cent—are unexplainable. What makes a good driver who is sober do a queer thing such as driving his car off the road to crash against some obstruction or driving it into another car to cause a wreck? Asleep at the wheel? That is probably a common cause of such spring accidents, say his car strategy by weaving from one side to the other as he approached, got as far off on one side as possible, but he hit head-on into our midship and smashed us plenty. Subsequently the beggar swore that he had tried to avoid it, but we had come at him on the right side of the road and he was giving a signal. When a driver feels drowsy at the wheel and finds it difficult to resist the desire to sleep, he can save time and money by stopping himself and others by stopping off the road and indulging in a short nap. After the nap he will feel refreshed and car have to have mufflers even in summer time, the muffler pipe terminating ahead of the rear wheels, or leaky spaces around the pit accumulator, or a dangerous amount of carbon monoxide in the car.

News Behind the News

BY PAUL MALLON.

ENCOURAGEMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—NRAer Leon Henderson received official assurances from his ex-colleagues in business when he said recently that a marked fall in improvement was a good "gamble."

Mr. Henderson was suspected of whistling while passing graveyards. Also, there were many chuckles over the uncertainty implied in the use of that word "gamble."

Yet a check of the confidential estimates being made by the best business authorities indicates Mr. Henderson knew what he was talking about. The sources of these estimates cannot be disclosed publicly, but you may rest assured they are not graveyard whistlers for the New Deal.

They have confidential data showing the scope of the government's spending plans. Solely on these figures, they judge that the fall rise (September and October) will be more than seasonal, possibly 7 per cent more.

Exact figures on spending cannot be published. All that can be said now is that the money will be pushed out in increasing quantities through the AAA, PWA and "other agencies."

As an instance of what can be done: The CWA method of direct handouts is supposed to have been abolished last spring, but right now the FERA is passing out money under different guises to a substantial portion of the people who were living off the CWA. There are unconfirmable indications that as many as 3,000,000 persons are now being cared for, or will shortly be cared for, through this device.

Farm purchasing power can be maintained at a much stronger level than the drought would suggest. Farmers who have any crops will get real prices for them. Those in the drought areas will be supplied money by the government.

"This money flow from Washington will certainly be accelerated until after the November elections. Then winter relief arrangements will be ready."

GRIEF There is much more underlying bitterness against President Roosevelt among big businessmen than has been publicly expressed. For instance, the most popular book in financial New York is one entitled "Franklin in Blunderland." It was written anonymously but is published by a reputable firm, appropriately with a red paper cover.

Copies are at a premium. The first printing was sold out long ago.

Also, the financial air is filled with smoking-room jokes about the New Deal, some of which are printable. Apropos of the federal deposit insurance and the popular song "Of Thee I Sing, Baby," it is related that Mr. Roosevelt is cracking the bankers with a ferule and requiring them to yodel: "F. D. I Sing, Bebebe."

SENSE Much of this sarcasm comes under the head of good fun, even if it is not always clean, and you find some financiers taking a sympathetic attitude toward the government. One financial wizard whose judgment is as good as any, has this very interesting view:

"I don't mind when the New Deal says there are to be no profits for a few years. I am not troubled when it tells the fat fellows they will have to live off their fat for a while. I do not get aroused even when it decides to make those who have money pay half of it to the government in taxes. I think all of these are probably good things."

"But I do believe the time has come for a change of tactics on the part of the administration. I think its attitude is all wrong. The time has come to end uncertainty as much as possible and encourage business to go ahead. For instance, all the cards in social insurance legislation next session should be laid on the table. Business should be permitted to know how much its costs are going to be raised by such legislation. It also should be permitted to know the extent to which it is going to be affected by tariff policy."

"I do not ask that Mr. Roosevelt change his New Deal. All I say is, let us have it and get it over with. Business can readjust itself to what is demanded of it and then get started on something like a permanent basis."

"Until that is done, I cannot see any end to uncertainty or any chance for substantial progress."

NOTES The opinion is general in the best silver circles that the new silver policy will hasten the collapse of Europe's gold bloc. The retirement of France from gold leadership has been expected a long time, and is yet considered as certain, as General Johnson's retirement from the NRA.

Chairman Kennedy, of the securities commission, has had some private business experience with the motion picture industry. His associates say that, at a recent private gathering of businessmen, one told Kennedy: "Now, take the motion picture industry." Whereupon Mr. Kennedy broke in and said: "You take them, I've had them."

German circles here have what appears to be creditable information indicating that Herr Hitler will very shortly cut off his right-hand man, Dr. Goebbels.

Incidentally, der fuhrer will always hereafter be known as der furore.

If You Want a Little Wagon Painted Red, You Must Pay a Nickel More

By Robert Quillen

A certain mechanic who felt sorry for himself visited the town philosopher and complained of his hard life.

"I am a wage slave," said he. "The birds and animals live without work, while I must toil seven hours a day to get a living."

"Rats!" said the philosopher politely. "Do you enter a store with one dollar in your pocket and expect it to buy an arm load of groceries, a suit of clothes and a car?"

"Of course not," said the mechanic. "I expect only a dollar's worth for a dollar."

"In that case," said the philosopher, "you have no reason to complain. You can live without working more than the birds and animals do if you are content to live as they do."

"An American thinker once demonstrated that a man can live all year on the proceeds of a few weeks' toil. And in the South Seas people live happily without doing any work at all except a little fishing, and that is play."

"It isn't a mere living that requires so much toil. It is the frills. How many pairs of pants have you?"

"Three," confessed the mechanic.

"Just so," said the philosopher. "You aren't content with what you need. You must adorn yourself and eat fancy rations and have entertainment. So it isn't a living you sweat for, but show-off money, luxury money and pleasure money."

"No you don't," grumbled the mechanic. "I slave for a boss."

"No you don't," said the philosopher. "He is just a little to do with it. Shrewd men tease you by displaying gaudy play-pretties to make you covetous, so you slave to get money to buy the things."

"You might be working for yourself, spading your garden or chopping your winter wood, but you prefer working for the men who offer the play-pretties. And you could go to bed at dark, but no; you must sit up and burn expensive electricity."

"So such things make life easier and better," said the mechanic.

"So they do," agreed the philosopher. "But they are the icing on the cake. And if you desire icing, pay for it and quit grouching."

Saratoga

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—For 11 months Saratoga, N. Y., is a more or less law-abiding small town. During the month of August Saratoga takes a partial vacation from her conscience and becomes the summer headquarters of the New York underworld. Just as Miami becomes their winter quarters from Christmas to St. Patrick's Day, throughout August, Saratoga is infested by the drowsy, sinister characters of the region known as Broadway and many of the frowzy, sleep-out types who hang around all horse-parks like buzzards wheeling in the region of something not quite satisfactory. The supreme court Monday ordered a new trial for Archie Barfield, Clayton county negro under sentence of death for the murder of Mrs. Eva Evans, wife of a Clayton county farmer.

The reversal was ordered because Lester Dickson, a Fayetteville lawyer, acting as special prosecutor in the case, made prejudicial remarks to the jury.

The supreme court Monday upheld the action of the Toombs superior court in dismissing a suit brought by the heirs of Caroline and Sarah McIntyre over the division of a large tract of land. The lower court had held that there was no basis for suit set out and the supreme court approved the decision.

ATLANTA IS SELECTED REGION HEADQUARTERS

John W. Millsaps Director for Five States for Federal Housing.

Atlanta was named Monday as regional headquarters for the federal housing administration as the first step in a nation-wide campaign for improvement of homes and other buildings. The region for which Atlanta will be headquarters embraces Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida and will be under the direction of John W. Millsaps, Atlanta attorney and lumber manufacturer, according to announcement by Donald I. Richberg, director of the national emergency council.

William A. Sirmon, former adjutant of the Georgia department of the American Legion, has been appointed director for Georgia.

Mr. Sirmon said Monday that it would be several days before preliminary details could be disposed of and offices established.

The modernization program which will be undertaken in this division through the Atlanta headquarters was launched Monday when 18,000 financial institutions throughout the country opened their doors to citizens seeking aid. The federal government guarantees 20 per cent of the total loans made by the banks and the banker relies upon the integrity of the borrower for repayment of the full principal.

Mr. Davidson said that the club was issuing an invitation to Hapeville, Jonesboro and Hampton supporters of the governor to join the 'cade as it goes through their cities. The thirteenth ward Talmadge club is to be organized at a meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the county club's headquarters in the Henry Grady hotel.

TALMADGE WILL SPEAK IN DECATUR NEXT WEEK

DeKalb Democratic Club Sponsoring Meeting at Courthouse Next Monday

Governor Eugene Talmadge will speak to the voters of DeKalb county at the courthouse in Decatur next Monday night, it was announced Monday by the DeKalb County Young Democratic Club, which will sponsor the meeting. The club already has sponsored a meeting of Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville, with the Talmadge address to follow.

Baxter Gentry, Monday called upon the DeKalb County Talmadge Club to complete arrangements for the Talmadge meeting and a committee from the club, composed of W. B. Griffin, Alex McLennan and Augustus M. Roan will be in charge of the program.

J. J. Mangham, of Bremen, former chairman of the state highway board, announced Monday that he plans to make a speech shortly revealing why he left the highway last fall. Mr. Mangham said it has not been decided when and where the speech will be delivered. The former road board chairman has been actively associated in the campaign of Judge Pittman.

Developments Monday in the gubernatorial race were marked by the issuance of another statement by J. J. Sid Tiller, of Atlanta, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, in which he attacked the governor again, charging that the chief executive has "no interest in the welfare of the workers and their families."

The statement follows:

In his recent public utterances Governor Talmadge has challenged the rights of the Georgia Federation of Labor to speak for and protect the interests of the workers of this state, particularly those engaged in highway construction. He has charged that organized labor is interested only in the wages and working conditions of its members, and that not more than one out of every 500 workers on the highways are members of any union.

The governor makes the mistake of judging the labor movement by his own standards; he cannot conceive that any one would be moved to perform a humanitarian or helpful service except for a selfish motive.

It is true that not more than one out of 500 of the workers on our highways belong to any labor organization, but regardless of whether they are union or non-union, they are still workers and fellow Georgians. As such they are entitled to fair wages and decent treatment for the services they perform.

When it became apparent that Governor Talmadge had no interest in the welfare of these workers and their families, it became the obligation and privilege of the organized workers, who could protect themselves, to also endeavor to protect those who were being abused by state officials to further the selfish interest of chieftain contractors.

When challenged about the "nickel an hour" for workers, Governor Talmadge replied that the "charge was born in iniquity and hatched in crime." Apparently the governor forgets that there are official records, and that from January through July, 1933, when he had sole control of the relief funds in Georgia, he fixed the "nickel an hour" wage for the heads of Georgia families who were destitute through no fault of their own. The many thousands of our people who were forced to accept the "nickel an hour" or starve, are witnesses to this fact, in addition to the official records.

We agree that it was a crime, but it was born under the dome of the capitol and hatched in the governor's office.

The United States government, endeavoring to protect Georgia citizens from being abused by their own officials, enjoined a chieftain contractor from violating the law. Governor Talmadge and his henchmen on the state highway board stepped in to protect their chieftain contractors from financial loss and to the shame of all Georgians, placed our state government on the side of the law breaker. These public officials hiding under the cloak of their office, feeling that they are exempt from prosecution, boast that they intend to take advantage of the need of their own citizens. Their act as public officials would send them to the penitentiary if committed as private citizens.

No amount of misrepresentation can hide the fact that Governor Talmadge and his house are opposing the recovery program of President Roosevelt and the democratic party. The people of Georgia must choose between allegiance to that great program or open defiance of the law.

FERA Declines to Cut
Atlanta Relief Quota

FERA administrators Monday rejected Atlanta's request that relief appropriations paid by the municipality be reduced $50,000 for the remainder of the year.

In a letter to Mayor James L. Key, FERA administrator, George H. Shepperson, Georgia FERA administrator, expressed sympathy with Atlanta's fiscal problems, but added that FERA could not put more money into Atlanta without diverting it from other communities in greater need. She also said no emergency exists as great as providing food and necessities for thousands of Atlanta citizens.

TO PROPERTY OWNERS OF GEORGIA Important Notice

We are prepared to lend money to you for repairing and remodeling homes and buildings—under the provisions of The National Housing Act and the regulations of the Federal Housing Administration.

If you can use money for this purpose -- visit our bank and discuss your program with one of our officers -- immediately.

THE NEED

Thousands of property owners over the nation have watched their homes and buildings fall steadily into a state of disrepair, but have been powerless to obtain money and credit necessary to remedy the condition.

The National Housing Act, recently passed, has placed banks like our own in a position to work with property owners and we are hastening to advise the men and women of Georgia that we are ready to co-operate immediately.

It is not possible to detail here all the circumstances regarding these loans and of course there will be varying conditions in many cases.

THE PROGRAM

Broadly the program is this: To substantial property owners, we are prepared to make loans up to $2,000.00, to be amortized over a period of from one to five years.

These loans need not be mortgages; straight character loans requiring only proper indication of the ability of the borrower to repay on schedule, will be made in many cases.

As in all bank loans, the financial condition of the borrower will determine the conditions of the loan.

CREDIT NOW AVAILABLE

The important fact, for every property owner at the moment, is to understand that credit is now available at our bank for purposes of repairing and remodeling homes and buildings.

WITH GOVERNMENT CO-OPERATION

We are doing this to co-operate with the Government in a program whereby they not only expect to create better housing conditions but also to promote a building activity which will give employment to thousands and improve the entire real estate market.

While in Detroit they will be entertained by Ford executives. In the picture are shown the buyers with executives of the Ford branch here and local Ford dealers.

CODE ADJUSTMENT REACHED BY STORES

Following a conference with William R. Lovett, president of the Winn & Lovett Grocery Company, operators of Piggly Wiggly stores, one of the largest grocery chains in the south, W. L. Mitchell, state NRA compliance director for Georgia, announced Monday that a satisfactory adjustment of code irregularities had been reached and that all company executives have been instructed by Mr. Lovett to observe strictly the NRA requirements.

The settlement includes restitution of back wages to employees in some instances, the reinstatement of several workers recently dismissed, and the posting of a $7,500 bond guaranteeing future compliance by the grocery chain.

Admitting that his company had erred in assuming that there had been a gradual lessening of restrictions and enforcement, Mr. Lovett said: "I am glad that every effort is being made to enforce the grocery code. Recent interviews with executives in northern centers have convinced me that reports of widespread violations are unfounded. Northern employers declare that they are abiding by the code and feel that it is the only thing which will bring a return of normal business conditions. The code idea cannot succeed by half compliance, and my company, therefore, wants to go on record as being in wholehearted sympathy with the NRA and determined to accord it 100 per cent support. To this end all of our stores will continue the prominent display of the Blue Eagle. We have paid all code assessments and have advised our personnel that there must be no breach of faith. Any complaints of such will be promptly investigated and rectified."

DO LEOPARDS ROAR?

Whether or not the leopard roars is something I cannot answer. It has never been my pleasure to study in the range of these spotted cats and therefore I can only say that the spotted frog that bears the name of leopard must have taken that name from the spots rather than voice, unless some vivid imagination has likened the sound of the leopard frog call to the purring of an enormous cat.

While the swamp cricket frogs and the spring peepers are finishing up their vernal concert series, the leopard frogs make their appearance on the stage and begin a chorus of soft clucking calls. They sit low in the water on these nights; some adventurous spirits among them may venture onto the margin of the pond just a bit beyond the feather edge of the water; always, however, they are headed back toward the friendly fluid, for they well know where their safety lies.

It is a bit difficult to find the leopard if one is relying on the source of the fluttering call as an index to the location of the animal. One should rather wade slowly along the edges of the sloughs and bays, light trained carefully several feet in advance of one's position, causing as small a ripple to proceed one as possible. At the slightest indication of a disturbance by land or water, there is usually a single screaming cry, nerve-shaking on the stillness of night if unexpected, followed by a portentous plunk.

Bread Price Rises 2 Cents at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The price of bread increased here today. Housewives found the former 3-cent loaf was 7 cents and weighed 12 ounces instead of 10. The old 10-cent loaf remained at that price but its weight was reduced from 20 to 17 ounces.

Frank Jungwaele, secretary of the St. Louis bakery code authority, said the increase was caused by increased labor costs due to the code and more expensive ingredients because of processing taxes and the drought.

CONTRACT'S "ACES" TOPPLED BY TEAM OF 4 NEWCOMERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Four young men from Ohio, two attorneys, a salesman and a businessman who play bridge in their spare time, came out of the west and defeated today a team of eastern experts captained by Mrs. Josephine Culbertson to win the coveted team-of-four trophy of the American Bridge League. The team by 2,550 points.

It was the first time they ever had played together as a team of four, although William F. Hopkins and Charles H. Porter, of Cincinnati, are old-timers together as a pair team, with the same true of the other pair, Aaron Frank and Jeff Glick, of Cleveland.

Frank and Hopkins are the attorneys; Glick is the salesman and Porter is the businessman. They don't consider bridge their business, but regard it as an avocation. In the semifinals they defeated the famous "aces" team of Oswald Jacoby, David Burnstine, Howard Schenken and Richard Frey, of New York. That was in Ashbury Park, N. J.

Today they defeated the strong team captained by Mrs. Culbertson, on which the other players were Alphonse Morse, Sherman Stearns and Theodore Lightner, all of New York. Frank has been playing bridge but two and a half years since he was graduated from Western Reserve College in Cleveland. Jacoby termed their defensive and offensive play "marvelous."

All are deliberate players, as Mrs. Culbertson, and the 48 hands played during the afternoon and evening were at a slow but steady pace.

The trophy they won tonight is considered one of the two major team-of-four prizes in the nation and was first awarded in 1930. The first team to win it was composed of Ely Culbertson, Mrs. Culbertson, Lightner and Waldemar Von Zedwitz.

In 1931 the winners were P. Hal Sims and Jacoby, who this year fought on the tournament floor at Ashbury Park, and Burnstine, Jacoby, Schenken and Frey, the team the Ohio men eliminated this year, won in 1934. Thus, for the first time, the trophy leaves New York.

The Hopkins combination ended the afternoon session, after playing 24 hands, 660 points ahead.

The negro caretaker is held on "suspicion." Slaton was shot in the back by a rifle, police said. Anderson claimed he shot in self-defense.

ALMAND IS PROTESTED AS TAX BOARD MEMBER

Taylor Quits Group; Other Two Members Hold First Hearing for 30 Owners.

Fixing of valuations on property of 30 owners which is in dispute struck a snag Monday when the special board of arbitrators appointed to settle the disputed values held its first meeting. J. H. Taylor, a member of the board representing the protesting property-owners, refused to serve on the ground that Ed L. Almand, who, with A. Steve Nance complete the board membership, is disqualified because of the fact that he is a commissioner-elect for Fulton county. Mr. Nance raised the question that Mr. Almand has been nominated, but has not been elected, and is therefore not disqualified on that ground.

With the third member absent, Mr. Almand and Mr. Nance proceeded with the hearing over the protest of E. E. Nash, tax adjuster who filed reduced returns for the taxpayers which amount in value to more than $2,000,000.

Marion Smith, attorney, appeared on behalf of the tax assessors, and the various returns were submitted in evidence, with no representation on the part of the property-owners. Mr. Nash protesting formally as each exhibit was offered. Mr. Nash refused to be sworn as a witness on the ground that the whole proceeding is illegal, and also refused to submit list of stocks and other securities owned by his clients.

The board will continue the hearing this morning at 10 o'clock and expects to conclude the work during the day.

INJUNCTION HEARING AT MACON AUGUST 27

A hearing for permanent injunction against Comptroller General William B. Harrison and arbitrators from further efforts to make increased tax assessments against 10 Georgia telephone companies, scheduled at Dublin Monday has been postponed until August 27 and will be held at Macon.

The companies on August 4 were granted a temporary injunction in federal court by Judge Bascom Deaver against Harrison and the arbitrators—W. L. McElmurray, of Burke county; Jack C. Savage, of Fulton county, and H. C. Cox, of Monroe county. The companies seeking relief are: Georgia Continental, Thomaston, Cairo, Statesboro, Consolidated, Douglas, Dalton, Chatsworth, Southeastern and Central.

Former Empress Zita Pushes Plans To Place Otto on Throne in Austria

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The former Empress Zita, described by diplomats as a "fast worker," was said today by an authoritative source to be going ahead with her efforts to bring about restoration of the Hapsburg throne in Austria despite objections from the little entente nations.

Italian officials were said by the same source to have suggested that Zita go slowly in her negotiations on the continent looking toward making her son, the Archduke Otto, a king.

While British official quarters declined to discuss the monarchical plans, they ridiculed reports that Otto, now in Sweden, might try to marry a Swedish princess.

"An Italian princess still remains the probable consort if his plans for the throne ever get anywhere," one diplomat said.

Another high source described Otto's present journey in the Scandinavian countries as mere "dust in the eye to mark Zita's real negotiations in Italy, France and elsewhere."

(In Brussels an authoritative source disclosed today that plans of Otto to attend a family meeting in Italy were changed after newspapers had revealed his destination when he started from his Belgian castle last week. His baggage already had gone south. It was stated, but he changed his mind and went north after his plans were published.)

High diplomatic sources here said that the Bourbon-Farmis family fortune, estimated at $100,000,000, is being used to back Otto.

Zita's negotiations were reported to have been bitterly rejected by the little entente nations—Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

Representatives of those countries, London has heard, asserted that they feared an Austro-Hungarian monarchy meant danger to their independence.

Diplomatic quarters have been told that the little entente countries were offered oral guarantees that no encroachment on their territories was intended, but have not yet accepted.

These reports conflicted with another to the effect that Zita has been urged by some advisers to make such guarantees in writing, but declined to do so.

Diplomatic observers are inclined to believe Zita would be asked to give written guarantees if France and Italy would act as witnesses.

So far Zita has been unable to win France over, due to the latter's study of the little entente's objections.

PILOT AND PASSENGER DIE IN PLANE CRASH

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A sharp ground current of air was blamed today for the crash of a cabin plane in which two men perished while their fiancées worked with rescuers to save them from the blazing wreckage.

As the ship nosed over and plunged from 200 feet yesterday, with its two victims, Raymond Casson, 28, Corning, Ark., pilot, and Louis Wastl, 22, Chicago bookkeeper, the two girls, Miss Marie Wastl, 21, sister of Louis and Casson's fiancée, and Miss Carolyn Senn, 22, Wastl's fiancée, grabbed fire extinguishers and ran to aid.

But the craft was a roaring mass of steel and wood when they arrived, and both men were burned beyond recognition.

The crash occurred on the edge of the little entente's objections.

Consider Your Child's Eyesight

It won't be long until school opens, and parents should be sure the child's vision is not impaired.

Many children are handicapped in school work, being unable to concentrate on their studies. If the eyes are not properly focused, type becomes blurred. If forced to continue for long, serious eyestrain will eventually develop.

Nerves of the eyes, like those of the stomach, are easily deranged, especially in children. It doesn't follow that the youngest needs glasses, but any trouble will be disclosed by examination.

HERE'S a letter from Mr. R. C. Smith, manager of the American Petroleum Company of Davenport, Iowa, who owns the Ford V-8 Truck equipped with a third axle, illustrated above. He says:

"Early last spring, we bought a 157-inch wheelbase Ford V-8 Truck to replace a big 210-inch wheelbase unit temporarily. We intended to use the Ford V-8 afterwards for lighter hauling."

"Nobody ever told me this truck would haul a five-ton load. But I find to my surprise that the Ford V-8 Truck handles five tons with perfect ease and economy."

"As a result, I have replaced two other large trucks with New Ford V-8 Trucks."

That's one owner's experience. There are hundreds more in our files. In spite of overloads many times its rated capacity, the Ford V-8 Truck is amazing owners all over the country by its performance, strength, and wealth of reserve power. ## Rock Slide Tears Huge Gap In Rim of Horseshoe Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP)—A gigantic pile of rock estimated to weigh 30,000,000 pounds rose above the water in Niagara gorge tonight, visible evidence of the first major rock slide from Horseshoe falls since 1931.

Residents said the rock fall had changed the contour of the falls considerably. It also altered the course of the turbulent waters of the upper rapids, they said, sending more water toward the American side.

John T. Jackson, general manager of the Queen Victoria park, maintained by the Canadian government on that side of the falls, estimated the rock weighed 15,000 tons after a trip on a sight-seeing boat.

The pile at the foot of the falls, Jackson said, is huge and some of the pieces of rock are 30 feet square. Others seem to be about 50 feet thick.

Canadian Power Company engineers had reported no damage to tunnels or their equipment tonight. They said no great effect was apparent in the flow of water, but continued to keep a close watch for developments.

The break was halfway to the apex of the horseshoe-shaped falls from Goat island, Racy Levee, police superintendent at Niagara reservation on the island, stated. The island is between Niagara Falls on the American side and Horseshoe, which is entirely in Canada. Levee said the rock began to crumble about 250 feet from the shore of the island.

The first rock slide at the falls occurred January 17, 1931. A piece 150 feet deep and 300 feet wide fell from the American falls then, bringing down an estimated 80,000 tons of rock.

Today water was flowing over what yesterday was dry rock as sightseers thronged to the shore of Goat island in an effort to obtain a view of the jagged, saw-like rim of the falls and the huge pile beneath it. But the mist obscured the view, shrouding the secret of nature's wonder.

The huge chunk fell from the cataract at 8:20 a. m. E. S. T., today with a deafening roar that seemed to still the sound of water pouring over the precipice. The rock landed in the gorge, sending a spout of water more than 200 feet into the air.

The by of one of America's wonders lifted as if from a charge of dynamite, heaved, groaned and slid away with a roar. Where there was only a dribble of water yesterday a huge stream began to pour.

Horatio Collins, assistant chief of the reservation police, estimated today the slide was 200 yards wide and 50 feet or more deep. He was the only person who witnessed the slide.

4 STATES' VOTERS AT POLLS TODAY

Ohio and Nebraska Will Name Senatorial Candidates for Both Parties.

By the Associated Press.

Stirred by the turbulence of bitter campaigns, Ohio and Nebraska democrats and republicans will choose senatorial candidates in today's primaries for the November 6 congressional elections.

These states, along with Idaho and Arkansas, also name party candidates for 38 house seats, four governorships and numerous state offices.

With the "New Deal" the major issue in both senatorial party fights in Nebraska and Ohio, those contests have drawn national interest.

The outcome is viewed in some quarters as an important test of Roosevelt policies.

Claims and charges of Roosevelt's administration support in behalf of two senatorial candidates—Representative E. R. Burke in Nebraska and Representative Charles West in Ohio—despite the reported "hands-off" policy of the White House in primaries, has increased the importance of the contests.

Nebraska Conflict.

The Nebraska senatorial fight between Burke and Governor Charles W. Bryan, brother of the late William Jennings Bryan, also is a tug-of-war for democratic control of the state.

Bryan's political enemy, Arthur F. Mullen, former democratic national committeeman, has been active in the campaign. Burke and Mullen are charged that Bryan is opposed to the "New Deal."

Ohio's three-way democratic senatorial scrap brought claims from former Governor A. V. "Vic" Donahue, Representative West and Governor George White that each of them was the best qualified as New Deal candidate.

Donahue, Bulky, administration democrat supporting West, has threatened to institute an investigation in the event Governor White is nominated.

Senator Simon D. Fess is seeking the republican senatorial nomination. He has expressed unqualified opposition to the Roosevelt administration.

Fess has three opponents.

Former Representative Robert G. Simmons, of Lincoln, is a candidate for the Nebraska republican senatorial nomination. Other candidates are Kenneth S. Wherry, of Pawnee City; Robert Smith, of Omaha; U. S. Renard, of Port Calhoun, and Barton Green, of Lincoln.

C. A. Sorenson, of Lincoln, has four opponents for the Nebraska republican gubernatorial nomination. In that state's democratic gubernatorial primary there is a field of nine.

In Ohio seven republicans are seeking the gubernatorial nomination. Governor C. Ben Ross wants the democratic gubernatorial nomination for the third time in Idaho and has two opponents.

Governor J. Marion Futrell is opposed for the democratic gubernatorial nomination by Howard A. Reed, former state controller.

All the incumbents in the 24 Ohio 5 Nebraska, 2 Idaho and 7 Arkansas house seats have contests for re-election.

U. S. CONCILIATOR NAMED TO SETTLE ALUMINUM STRIKE

quitting to gain higher wages and better working conditions. A federal conciliator was ordered from Astoria to Portland to speed a settlement.

Lever Brothers shut down its soap works at Hammond, Ind., indefinitely, putting 300 employees out of work after a disturbance which resulted in the injury of five strikers and three guards and nearly precipitated a riot.

Three automobiles containing workers crashed the picket lines.

A new strike began at Milwaukee with the walkout of 600 employees of the Geuder, Paeschke & Frey Company. Five hundred pickets, members of the fabricated metals and machinists unions, surrounded the plant to enforce demands for higher wages, better working conditions and the right to represent employees in collective bargaining.

Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, predicted a New York city strike of major proportions are on the way in textile industries. He advised the union to insist on a five-day, 30-hour week and machine load basis of 1921 and to strike if the machine load is excessive.

Determined to prevent the Red Ray mine of the Union Electric Coal Company at Freebush, Ill., from opening, a United Mine Workers crew of 1,500 members of the Progressive Miners of America established a picket line. The rival workers failed to show up, so the picket army was reduced but a close watch maintained.

FEDERAL CONCILIATOR WILL DISPUTE WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The federal labor relations board stepped into the aluminum strike today in an attempt to bring it to an end.

Fred Keighly, a veteran labor department conciliator described as "very familiar with the aluminum situation," was summoned from Philadelphia to study the strike issues.

While in Washington, he will confer with the board and, possibly, with representatives of the Aluminum Company of America and its striking workers. He might then go to Pittsburgh for further conferences.

Mediation is as far as the labor board can go toward a strike settlement. It may suggest a settlement, but it cannot force strikers back to work or order both sides to submit to arbitration. Under the law, arbitration by the board must be voluntary with both sides.

SIX BIG PLANTS IDLE AS GOVERNMENT ACTS PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Six big plants of the Aluminum Company of America emptied today when 8,500 men remained idle today while government agencies swung into action to end a strike called by the aluminum workers' council.

Peace conditions prevailed at all the operations affected, situated at New Kensington, Arnold and Logan's Ferry, in Pennsylvania, and at Alcoa, Tenn.; Massena, N. Y., and East St. Louis, Ill.

David Williams, district organizer for the American Federation of Labor, which has sanctioned the strike, said that all picketing must be peaceful.

Officials of the company said they were in a "receptive mood" for any suggestions federal conciliators may offer.

REVISED PEACE PLAN SEEN IN TRUCK STRIKE MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Warrior union truck drivers' strike today pinned their hopes for an early settlement upon submission of a revised peace plan to strike leaders.

The Rev. Francis Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, federal mediators said they would give the latest settlement offer to strike leaders. It was approved by the employers' advisory committee this morning.

Provisions of the projected settlement were not disclosed though spokesmen for employers said it probably represented the last concessions that strikers would make. Whether these "concessions" would be accepted or not, the union leaders said, was a matter of opinion.

Broad Aviation Developments Are Predicted by Clark Howell

ROME, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Development of the American aviation industry to a point that "will surpass present dreams" was predicted today by Clark Howell, chairman of President Roosevelt's federal aviation commission.

The prediction was made in a statement by Howell at a luncheon given him and his party by Count Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Mussolini and head of the government press bureau.

The commission of which he is chairman, Mr. Howell said, is "charged with the responsible duty of recommending to the American congress measures that will stabilize the relations between the industry and the government, thus paving the way for a development of the industry that will surpass present dreams of transportation achievement."

He explained that he had accepted an invitation to come to Italy with her exotic dances, and Jerry Lynn's dance oddities are good.

The light and graceful vaudeville program slips into the slightly heavier feature film without a break as Helen Twelvrees declares that "She Was a Lady." The story was written by Irving S. Cobb's daughter, Elisabeth, who has shown a decidedly romantic imagination in weaving her tale of a girl whose father was an English lord and whose mother was a chambermaid.

Helen Twelvrees is beautiful as Sheila Vane, reared on a Montana ranch to live under the noblest obligations. She falls in love with Tommy, an adorable young drunkard with a square chin. And the thorny path of love carries her from a job with a circus through an English manor to the inevitable, Don Woods, a whole string of adjectives synonymous with "engaging" as Tommy.

The shorts include a Charley Chase comedy about "Nature in the Wrong" and a Betty Boop cartoon, both humorous enough to put the audience in a cheerful frame of mind without strenuous slapstick contortions.

RAILROAD PASSENGER FARES AND SERVICE

Central Georgia

In December, 1933, the railroads of Georgia, Florida, Alabama and other Southeastern states put in, with approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission and for an experimental period, voluntary reductions in passenger fares ranging to as low as 14 cents a mile. Similar reductions were made by railroads of the western group, in all states west of the Mississippi River and in some states of the mid-western section. Railroad passenger fares are now lower than ever before.

During the same period, also by voluntary action and with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Pullman surcharge was eliminated in all of these states.

These reductions have brought increases in the number of passengers using the railroad trains, but the increase in revenue has not been as great as had been hoped for—in June, for example, the Central of Georgia's passenger revenue was actually less than in June of 1933 when the higher rates were in effect.

A particularly regrettable feature of the limited increase in passenger revenue is that it has not been possible for the railroads to increase their forces by putting on more trains, and thus give employment to additional conductors, engineers, firemen, flagmen, etc. The number of passenger trains in Georgia is the same as it was before the reductions went into effect.

In addition to lower rates, railroad patrons enjoy more comfortable facilities. At considerable additional expense the Central of Georgia pre-cools its sleeping cars between Savannah and Atlanta, Macon, Columbus and Birmingham, as well as from Atlanta to Albany. Approximately eight thousand dollars is the cost of installing air-conditioning equipment in a Pullman car, yet a number of such cars are operated in the South—and if passenger revenues increase to a point to justify the expenditures other such cars will no doubt be put on.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

H. D. POLLARD, Receiver.

Of wide social interest throughout the south and east is the announcement made by Mrs. Benajah Wilson Bird Sr. of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Jo Bird, to Frederick Stephen Callahan, of New York and Baltimore. A program of violin and piano music preceded the ceremony, including Oley Speck's "Sylvia," "Oh Promise Me" and the "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin." The bride was dressed in a gown of white tulle with a high collar and long sleeves, and a long train. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Benajah Wilson Bird Sr., who is a well-known social leader in the city. The groom, Frederick Stephen Callahan, is a young man of about 25, of New York and Baltimore. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Callahan, who are well-known in the city. The bride and groom will be married on Monday evening at the home of the bride's mother on Sheridan drive. The ceremony was solemnized by Dr. Luther Rice Christie, of Louisville, Ky. The bride was dressed in a gown of white tulle with a high collar and long sleeves, and a long train. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Benajah Wilson Bird Sr., who is a well-known social leader in the city. The groom, Frederick Stephen Callahan, is a young man of about 25, of New York and Baltimore. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Callahan, who are well-known in the city.

Robert Edward Hodgson acted as Mr. Callahan's best man, and Miss Evelyn Bird was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. She was becomingly gowned in pale pink satin which featured a high neckline in front and a low V in back. The skirt fitted the hips and fell in graceful fullness to the floor. She carried a bouquet of talliesman roses, snapdragons and other garden flowers, tied with pastel moire ribbon.

The bride was lovely in a new fall model of champagne, fashioned with a cowl neck and draped softly over the shoulders and to the waist in the back, forming a V. The fitted skirt moulded the figure gracefully to the knees, and formed a slight train. Her flowers were an exquisite arrangement of lavender orchids and lilies of the valley.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Callahan were entertained at a dinner-dance at East Lake by the Standard Oil organization and later in the evening left by train for Baltimore where they will begin a motor trip through the New England states. After September 1 they will be at home at 600 West 113th street, New York city, for several months, later going to Baltimore for permanent residence.

C., where she will be remembered for her splendid work with the girls in the industrial department of Y. W. C. A. activities. Since coming to Atlanta she has been well known throughout the state as an office executive of the Standard Oil Company, whose Georgia division office is in Atlanta. Her position in the business world is an enviable one among women for she has held for a number of years the highest position ever filled by a woman in her organization. Many beautiful expressions of love and esteem were showered upon her by her co-workers and by her company at the time of her resignation.

Mr. Callahan is the son of the late Amelia Boynton and Michael Sydney Callahan, of New York city. His father was formerly an officer of the British navy. Mr. Callahan was captain and adjutant of the Twenty-second regiment of engineers, New York, but for years has been connected with the Vacuum Oil Company and Standard Oil Company of New York. He is at present automobile sales manager in the southeastern division of the Socony-Vacuum, with headquarters in Baltimore. He is a man of dynamic personality and has made scores of friends in the south and east among oil circles where he is most prominently identified.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 13.—The cotton ball, to be given in Chattanooga Friday evening, August 31, sponsored by the Woman's Press Club, will be of interest to members of Atlanta society, owing to the fact that a number of prominent members of the younger set of Atlanta, have been invited to be maids of honor in the queen's court in the grand march, which will be led by Dr. W. The names of the king and queen will not be divulged until the night of the ball but it is surmised that a well-known Chattanooga debutante and a prominent bachelor have been chosen. A floor show and a flower pageant will precede the ball and grand march of 100 couples will pass in review before the king and queen. The ladies will wear cotton organdy evening gowns and the young men will wear white linen suits. WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A new five-year naval air expansion program calling for a big increase in fighting aircraft and pilots is being drafted by Chairman Vinson, of the Senate naval committee, in co-operation with the navy department for presentation to the next congress.

The carriers, or attorneys representing over 150 of the largest roads, contended the statute, providing a retirement pension system for railroad workers, violated not one, but two clauses of the constitution.

By agreement between opposing lawyers, operation of the law, which became effective August 1, was suspended until Wednesday. At that time, the U. S. District Court of Columbia Superior court is to hear arguments and decide whether to grant a temporary injunction pending decision on the statute's validity.

Justice of the District Court, Vincent said the original five-year regardless of the ruling on the act. The issue is expected to be taken to the highest tribunal or settlement.

Railroad attorneys contended the pension legislation violates the commerce section of the constitution and the fifth amendment which prohibits the taking of property "without due process of law."

The transportation program, begun in 1927 and recently expanded, had resulted in savings of $27,000,000 to the government.

"Haphazard and sporadic purchasing of planes leads to waste and failure to keep abreast of rapid developments in fighting aircraft," Vinson complained. "The navy now has about 100 low cost planes."

S. R. Prince, general counsel for the Southern railway, a member of the committee which is headed by T. B. Fletcher, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, said the petition before Justice Proctor.

He said he understood the railroad retirement board, which is to 400 are suitable for war-time combat service. We need more of the fighting types."

The development of the naval aircraft factory for the construction of airplane engines, he said, was made necessary "to keep the government from being at the mercy of airplane engine manufacturers."

Harry Schulman, general counsel for the board and its members—Murray W. Latimer, John T. Williamson and Lee M. Eddy—informed the court he was not prepared to answer the railroad plea and asked a delay, which was granted.

The act provides that the railroad employees shall pay 2 per cent of their monthly salaries into a fund for pensions. The railroads would pay 4 per cent of their pay rolls into the fund. Pensions would be granted on request to any employee who has served 30 years, and are made mandatory when the worker reaches the age of 65. The railroads estimate here are 9,500 workers who will reach the mandatory retirement age this year.

About 30 years ago doctors scientists determined that air circulation is one of the principal requirements for comfort. Much has been said along this line and now most peo-north of here late Monday, the body of a 13-year-old boy, identified as Martha Trimm, was discovered in a corn field about 40 feet away.

Sheriff Newbill said officers called to investigate the wounding of Trimm discovered the body of the girl, a .38 calibre pistol at her feet.

Trimm is in a hospital here. He is shot through the chest.

Trimm's father, the sheriff described as a former resident of Corinth, Miss., has become accustomed to air-conditioning in some form, whether in their homes, offices, theatres or other public places.

Until recently hot, dirty and crowded trains had been accepted as the only way of getting from one place to another thing in train transportation.

With the advent of air-conditioned trains, Seaboard Air Line Railroad has adopted air-conditioned equipment.

Two bullet holes were in the girl's chest and physicians who examined the body said she apparently had been dead several hours. Her school books and her lunch were strewn on the ground near where the body was found. Nearby constables had been battered down, giving indication of a struggle.

TARZAN AND THE CITY OF GOLD No. 122

After Phobeg had warned of the fate that hung over Tarzan and his friends, the apes hurried to the palace. In the anteroom of the Queen's apartments a noble on guard protested that the Queen must not be disturbed, but Tarzan, impatient of the fellow's interference, pushed him aside and pounded on the door.

Nemone, however, admitted him eagerly. "I have been thinking of you," she said as she sank languorously among the soft cushions of a couch. "Have you been thinking of me?" Tarzan answered: "I have been thinking perhaps you will help me. That you can help me, I know."

"There is no favor you may not have from Nemone for the asking," the Queen replied softly as she drew Tarzan down beside her. A single gleam shot a pale, flickering light across the room. Beyond it blazed the yellow-green eyes of Belthar, the lion-eyes ever watchful, bright with cruel expectancy.

"Ah, Thoo! How I have hungered for this moment!" whispered Nemone, her soft, bare arms slipping quickly about Tarzan's chest. She drew him close. "Tarzan! My Tarzan!" she sobbed. Then that same fatal door at the far end of the apartment opened slowly and ever so silently.

DAILY SHORT STORY

RICH WIFE

Joan Was Wealthy; Tim Was Poor, But He Refused To Live On Her Money and Set Out To Make a Career.

By NORMA H. LAZELL.

"Only this! We love each other!" Alice said.

"Tim loves you . . ." exclaimed Joan.

"Yes," Alice hurried on. "You see, while it is an old story, it is a true one. I am ambitious. I naturally want the things every woman is entitled to. I sing well and would like to have my chance in concert."

"You could not do that as Tim's wife," Joan interrupted. "He has no money!"

"I know that, but I will give up

"Lord, Joan," Tim had stormed during their first quarrel, "you can't expect me to be happy just playing with your hobbies! You would hate me if I just gilded grew flowers, collected stamps and played bridge. Honestly, darling, wouldn't you? My work is with germs and such."

"I'll have to punch a clock, but some day you will be proud of me. Won't you let me live my life my way, for a while?"

The earnest pleading in his eyes had made her realize that Tim was right. Joan had given in and Tim had gone to work. Their second quarrel had been worse.

"Why don't you do something with your talent, Joan? Why don't you paint or do something worth while? You are wasting your life with fool hobbies and Tim would be a failure. Those sharp words of Tim's still hurt Joan."

Two years of happiness and now it was over. In a few minutes a woman was coming to see her, "Alice Sommers," she had said her name was, and, "it is important. I want to see you here at once. It is about Tim!"

Joan shuddered at the name. The way she had said "Tim." It could mean only one thing. This Alice loved Tim, and Tim loved Alice.

Joan remembered how busy she had been all week. There had been the dance, the lawn party, the bazaar. He had said he had been working on an experiment. The doorbell rang sharply and Joan knew that it was Alice Sommers even before the maid announced.

"It's rather private," said Alice. "I can talk to you here?" Her glance questioned the door of Tim's den.

"Yes, well here at once. What can you have to tell me about my husband?" she said, motioning her guest to the nearest chair.

"I have the evidence!"

"You word, as evidence, against Tim?" Joan asked, her eyes fixed on Alice's face.

"No," said Alice. "Not my word. His letters!"

"Joan sank into her chair. "You have letters with you?" she asked in a low voice.

"Yes," Alice calmly added. "You can have them and Tim, in exchange for a check today."

"If I see them, please?" Joan was talking to herself. She did not want to see Tim's writings, addressed to this Alice Sommers, but she must have evidence before she decided.

Alice took a package of letters from her purse and fittingly, as love letters should be, thought Joan, Alice snatched the blue ribbon from them and spread them fanlike in her hands. She had been working on an experiment. The doorbell rang sharply and Joan knew that it was Alice Sommers even before the maid announced.

"One thousand dollars apiece," Joan said slowly.

"Oh! Blackmail!" Joan arose scornfully from her chair. "And how am I to know that there is any truth in what you say?"

"I have the evidence!"

"You word, as evidence, against Tim?" Joan asked, her eyes fixed on Alice's face.

"No," said Alice. "Not my word. His letters!"
